Belbin Team Report

Number of Candidates: 6

Number of Observers: 26

Colourful Company PLC

Belbin has identified nine different clusters of behaviour - contributions that people can make at work. These are called the Belbin Team Roles. Each role has strengths (the contribution made by playing that role) and associated weaknesses (the potential downsides to playing the role). It's usual to have a few preferred Team Roles, and to display both strengths and weaknesses for those roles.

This page gives an 'at-a-glance' view of the balance and spread of Team Roles in the team. Only those deemed a Strong Example of a particular Team Role are included in the circle, so it is unlikely that everyone will be represented. (You can find more information on Strong Examples in the glossary.) This helps you to identify potential talent, clashes and gaps in Team Role contributions, and is intended to act as a discussion-starter.

Based on Self-Perception and Observer Assessments

This report shows Strong Examples of Team Roles in the team. Strong Examples are those who have a clear idea of their Team Role preferences, have a good level of agreement between Self-Perception and Observer views (if applicable) and display considerably more positive than negative behaviours for the given role.

Based on 6 Self-Perceptions and 26 Observer Assessments

This shows the team's average score for each Team Role, along with a summary of the team's characteristics. There are positive and negative implications for any Team Role 'culture' and these are explored too.

This team has a strong service orientation with a willingness to do what is needed and to do it well. Much will depend on whether it has been brought together for an assignment that is well-devised and well-understood from the outset. Failing that, the question is whether there is one strong creative person within the team who will take the lead. If not, then this team may lack direction.

The best scenario is of a team that will make a thorough job of any work taken on and be keen to ensure that standards are maintained. This team will strive for perfection and aim to achieve a reputation for accuracy and attention to detail.

This team is likely to avoid any risk of conflict, but in so doing it may back away from taking difficult decisions. The team may need someone willing to take on a leading role in driving its members forward or who is prepared to stand up and take a strong minority view.

Self-Perception Inventory (SPI)

---

The Self-Perception Inventory is the questionnaire an individual completes to ascertain their Team Roles. The questionnaire consists of eight sections, with each section containing ten items. The individual is asked to allocate ten marks per section to those statements which best reflect their working styles.

Observer Assessment (OA)

---

The Observer Assessment is the questionnaire completed by people who know the Self-Perception candidate well. We recommend that observers are chosen from among those who have worked with the individual closely and recently and within the same context (e.g. within the same team), since Team Role behaviours can change over time and in different situations.

Team Role Strength

---

These are the positive characteristics or behaviours associated with a particular Team Role.

Team Role Weakness

This is the flipside of a strength: negative behaviour which can be displayed as the result of a particular Team Role contribution. If someone is playing a particular Team Role well and their strengths outweigh their weaknesses in the role, it is called an "allowable weakness". Weaknesses become "non-allowable" if taken to extreme or if the associated Team Role strength is not displayed.

Percentiles

A percentile is a way of measuring your position in relation to others (the rest of the population). If a group of people take a test and receive scores, these can be distributed from highest to lowest and an individual's score can be judged in relation to the scores of others. If a person's score is in the 80th percentile, this indicates that 20% of people have scored more highly for this measure.

Percentages

Percentages represent a proportion of the whole. If you take an aptitude test and score 70 marks out of a possible 100, your score is 70%.

Strong example of a Team Role

---

A strong example is someone who appears to play a particular Team Role to especially good effect. To qualify as a strong example of a particular Team Role, someone needs to be in the 80th percentile for that Team Role according to their Self-Perception. Once Observer Assessments are added, Observer feedback is also taken into account to determine whether or not someone qualifies as a strong example.

Points Dropped

---

Some items in the Self-Perception Inventory pertain to claims about oneself rather than a valid Team Role contribution. If you have made more of these claims than 90% of the population, your Team Role feedback will take this into consideration.
